MEMORY OF NATION'S DEAD IS REVERED

Flowers Strewn O'er Graves of Men Who Followed Old Glory

Impressive Procession Pays High Tribute to Those Who Gave Their Lives for the Union in Dark Days of '61-'65—Reverence Shown to Heroes, Written and Unwritten, of Great Conflict That Joined North and South—Prominent Officials and Private Citizens Pay Respects to Departed

The tramp of soldiers' feet is heard today, the stirring notes of martial music. Over the graves of departed heroes elegies are being said, and their graves are strewn with flowers. The living are paying tribute to the dead. Youths entering on life, and aged men about to leave it, have paused in the rush of existence to bring roses and lilies to the resting places of those who have gone. For today is Memorial Day.

Men who fought under the flag of the country, and fell in the smoke of battle, or succumbed in the succeeding years of peace arise today in the memory of their comrades and in the memory of the nation. Words that are solemnly spoken over their graves and the flowers that are placed on them, are the evidences that these heroes will never be forgotten.

Those who watched the soldiers march to Nuuanu cemetery this morning, and heard the speeches made there, felt something of the country love that must have burned in the breasts of the men who gave up this life for it. At the graves were members of the Grand Army of the Republic, aged men at the sunset hours of their lives, who have watched the nation come out of a civil strife and grow into the nation that was Lincoln's dream. And near these old men stood younger ones, veterans of the Spanish war. And by them were the "regulars," men active in the military service; the National Guard, and younger by far than the others, the boy scout lads in their teens. Along with them were men in civil life, women and children.

Such was the gathering at the graves of the heroes. Many came early in the morning, with the dew on the sun, bringing their floral offerings. And tears must have mingled with the dew as the flowers were placed on the grass-covered mounds. As if in harmony with the spirit of the day the sky was clear, the morning beautiful. The rain of yesterday refreshed the flowers, and made the grass of the cemetery dustless and green.

The parade to the cemetery began promptly at 10 o'clock from the executive building, and proceeded down King street to Alakea, thence up to Vineyard, down which it marched to Nuuanu. It moved out Nuuanu to the cemetery.

A squad of mounted police headed the parade, behind which came Brigadier-General Clarence R. Edwards, grand marshal. He was accompanied by his staff—Lieut. Cary I. Crockett, 2d Infantry; Lieut. R. C. F. Goetz, 1st Field Artillery; aide, Capt. James D. Dougherty, N. G. H., special aide; Henry J. Burns, department adjutant, U. S. W. V.

The 2d United States Infantry, under command of Col. Francis H. French, followed. A battalion of Coast Artillery, commanded by Lieut. Col. W. E. Ellis, followed, after which the 1st Infantry of the National Guard appeared, headed by the Hawaiian band. The Kamehameha cadets, under Lieut. A. J. Booth, 2d Infantry, followed. George W. De Long Post No. 45, G. A. R., was next in order, and after him came Governor Pinkham in an automobile, Col. John W. Jones and Major Charles B. Cooper riding with him.

After the governor's machine came E. W. Ely, commander of the department of Hawaii, U. S. W. V.; Albert C. Bellamy, senior vice-commander; Charles W. Fife, junior vice-commander, and Thomas F. Kennedy, department quartermaster. They were followed by five camps of U. S. W. V.

ALL HONORS FOR SLEEPING HEROES

Sleep on, brave hearts, and take your rest.
A hundred million strong and free
Shall guard in each heroic breast
Your pure and priceless legacy.
'Twas not in vain, O noble band,
Your blood imbued Columbia's sod,
United now her children stand—
One flag, one country, and one God.

HARRY IRWIN TO CONDUCT M'CARN-M'BRIDE PROBE

That's the Intention of the Department of Justice—Grand Jury to Meet

Attorney Harry Irwin of Hilo is the man who will investigate the McCarn-McBride imbroglio, unless the department of justice changes its present intention.

That statement may be taken at face value, according to recent developments.

Whether there will be a switch in the program it is now impossible to say. It is understood that the department has not yet given any notice as to a final decision, but it is known that Harry Irwin has been practically selected. Whether he is aware of it or not—and as reported in this paper yesterday, he professed ignorance when asked as to the rumor—he is the individual that the authorities in Washington figure on to make the investigation.

Furthermore, as another interesting angle in this case, it is practically certain that the territorial grand jury early next week will take up the case. This follows the statement by Deputy Attorney Brown when the case was rolled over in district court, District Attorney McCarn being there charged with carrying a deadly weapon. This is the charge that the grand jury will look into.

KUHIO MAY NOT AGAIN RUN FOR DELEGATESHIP

Expects to Make Statement Next Week—Senator Rice in Race—Coke Not Running

Delegate J. K. Kalaniano'ole will authorize a statement to be made public early next week in which he will answer the question of whether or not he will be a candidate for re-election. This information was obtained yesterday afternoon from an authoritative source.

That Delegate Kuhio is in grave doubt about running again is a bit of surprising information also given out. Coming as it does from one who is intimately associated with the prince politically, it perhaps deserves to be taken at its face value.

It is stated now that Senator Charles Rice has informed the prince that he will be a candidate for the delegateship, and Kuhio has agreed to support him in the event he declines to run for re-election; and, in the other event, that they will carry on a friendly contest for the place.

When Senator Rice was in the city recently he lost no time getting in touch with the Republican leaders. But he refused to make any statement for publication on his probable candidacy.

The Senator James L. Coke boom for delegate has ended, for the latter now says he will take no part in the coming election. He expects to leave in a month or two for Denver, where the Elks' convention will be held, and will not be back until after the primaries. This leaves L. L. McCandless alone so far as a Democratic candidate for delegate is concerned.

It is expected that Senator Rice will run whether or not the prince does. With the prince out for the job again, it will mean a fight between the two for nomination, the winner to run against McCandless in the regular election.

The steamer W. D. Rees, which ran ashore on Seneca shore Lake Erie, was refloated undamaged.

IRVINGS GO TO DEATH IN FAREWELL EMBRACE; DEATH TOLL NOW 964

Many Women and Children Among the Bodies Recovered—Former Lost Their Lives Owing to Fact That They Stopped to Dress—Collier Storstad Reached Quebec With 14-Foot Hole in Bow—201 Passengers and 202 Members of Crew Are Rescued

(Associated Press service by Federal Wireless.)

QUEBEC, Canada, May 30.—Laurence Irving, son of Sir Henry Irving, the great English Shakespearean actor, who was numbered among the victims of the sinking of the Canadian-Pacific Railway Company's liner Empress of Ireland, is reported to have gone to his death with his wife enfolded in his arms. According to members of the crew and passengers, rescued from the unfortunate vessel, Mr. and Mrs. Irving realized that they were about to leave this world and kissed each other a fond farewell, clasped one another to the breast and went down into a watery grave. Latest estimates of the dead place the number at 964. The saved number 403, of passengers 201 and of crew 202.

Among the dead bodies recovered from the wreck are a large percentage of women and children. It is stated that the fact that they stopped to dress, after the impact with the collier Storstad, cost many of the women their lives.

The Storstad reached this port today, with a 14-foot hole showing in the bow, bearing mute testimony to the fearful blow that must have been struck the Empress of Ireland.

RIMOUSKI, Canada, May 30.—Captain Kendall of the S.S. Empress of Ireland, testifying at the coroner's inquest, stated that he saw the collier Storstad when she was two miles distant, and that at about the time of collision he stopped and rang full speed astern.

Captain Kendall stated that the Empress blew three short blasts and that the collier answered with one long blast, whereupon the Empress blew two short blasts and the Storstad again replied but two minutes later.

At the time of the whistling the Storstad appeared to be about two lengths distant, testified Captain Kendall, at which time he shouted through a megaphone to the collier to back water and at the same time ordered the Empress to go full ahead.

Following the collision Captain Kendall says he requested the Storstad to keep full speed ahead.
